BELIEVE CREW OF SUBMARINE NOW ALL DEAD

Nothing but Silence Results from Continued Oscillation to S-4

TIME HAS ELAPSED

Christmas Plans at Provincetown Abandoned as Community Sorrows

Boston, Dec. 21—Divers went below off Provincetown today as the gale subsided, permitting resumption of rescue work above the sunken submarine S-4, according to radiograms received at the Charlestown navy yard.

The brief messages stated that the divers could hear no signs of life in the stricken submarine.

This was the last heroic effort of Rear Admiral Frank H. Brumby to save those trapped 102 feet below the surface of the ocean off Cape Cod.

Provincetown, Mass., Dec. 21—Forty sailor lads of the Navy are asleep today in the shroud of a submarine's hull.

The messages have stopped coming from the six who stayed awake a little longer than the others.

There is not a gob nor sub-officer in the rescue fleet who believes a breath of life exists within the dark interior of the sunken S-4 although official announcement is withheld.

"The last message we heard was at 6 a. m. (yesterday)—perhaps they are asleep."

An epic last line to a great tragedy of the sea. A sailor boomed it across the turbulent water from the conning tower of the S-S.

The S-S, sister ship of the S-4, continues desperately to oscillate to the tomb of steel below. The crew of the S-S will do their part for their comrades. They know that but for the grace of fate it might have been them.

One Forlorn Hope

At 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the S-S reported:

"Received seven taps believed may have come from S-4. Unable to get response to our signals."

At 5:25 p. m. yesterday, the S-S reported:

"Seemed to hear light tapping but it is doubtful."

Today: Silence.

Upon these seven taps the navy hangs a forlorn hope. Officials reluctantly admit it is a fragile peg.

Meanwhile, the S-4 lies in the cold mud of the sea off the harbor here with the key unfound to the somber mystery within.

One hundred and two feet above, the rescue fleet is riding a northwest gale

INJURED DIVER ON WAY TO RECOVERY

Boston, Dec. 21—"Whitey" Michaels, courageous diver who was seized with the "bends" Monday morning when he became entangled with his lines alongside the ill-fated S-4, where he had gone to attempt to aid the entombed sailors is on the way to recovery in the Charlestown Naval Hospital here.

DEATH IN ELECTRIC CHAIR FOR HEWITT

Ohio Supreme Court Overrules Appeal for New Trial

Columbus, Dec. 21—Death in the electric chair today seemed the inevitable fate of Floyd Hewitt, 17-year-old slayer of a mother and her child, as the Ohio Supreme Court overruled an appeal for a new trial by the youth's attorneys.

The appeal has been before the supreme court for some time and pending the ruling on it Hewitt was granted an indefinite stay of execution. The court is expected to set the date for the electrocution within a short time.

Hewitt was found guilty in Ashtabula County of murdering Mrs. Celia Brown and her five-year-old son, Fred Brown, Jr., at the Brown home in North Conneaut.

The murder was committed Feb. 14.

Intervention by the governor is now the only means by which Hewitt can escape the electric chair, following the overruling of his appeal by the supreme court today.

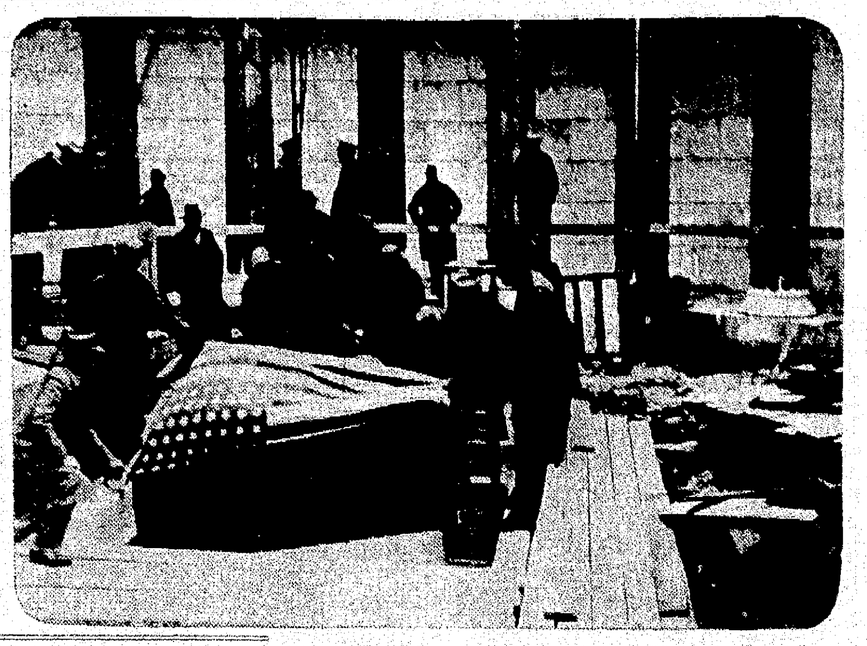
HARDING BODIES IN NEW TOMB



START TERMS IN STATE PRISON

Mrs. Margaret Lilliendahl Holds Steadfastly to Claim of Innocence

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 21—Mrs. Margaret Lilliendahl and Willis Beach arrived at State Prison here at 10:30 a. m. today from the Atlantic County Jail in Mays Landing, to begin service of a sentence of ten years each at hard labor. They were convicted of voluntary manslaughter for the murder of the woman's husband, Dr. William Lilliendahl, near Hammonton on Sept. 15 last.

At Mays Landing this morning the couple ate little of their breakfast and then started packing their few belongings.

"A more innocent woman was never sent to jail," Mrs. Lilliendahl said as she threw her things into suitcase. "It is all a nightmare."

Beach was grim and silent.

Friends Faithful

As they stepped into the heated limousine, Mrs. Lilliendahl said: "The only thing that helps me bear up now when I must go to prison is the knowledge that my friends still have faith in my innocence."

The widow was asked if she intends to seek a new trial.

"That is a matter for my attorneys," she answered briefly as she settled herself into the back seat.

HOLD CAPTURED PAIR TO NEXT GRAND JURY

Evidence Given by A. J. Berry Contradicts Claims in Pleas

Upon evidence given by A. J. Berry, local manager of the Ohio Associated Telephone Co., who testified that the doors of the house were securely locked, Sam Postel and Melvin Gibson, who entered pleas of not guilty to breaking into the W. W. Reading dwelling on Sharpest, were held to the grand jury by Municipal Judge W. R. Martin this morning and their bonds were fixed at $5,000 each. They were taken to jail in absence of bond.

The two were captured by Mr. Berry in the front room at the Reading home last Friday night after a burglar alarm which had been installed following a burglary several weeks ago, had sounded at the Berry home.

When arraigned before Judge Martin yesterday morning, the two entered pleas of guilty to being in the house, but denied breaking in. Both the doors and windows of the house were securely locked, Mr. Berry said this morning, and the men gained an entrance in the same manner as the burglars who visited the place several weeks ago, by reaching their hand through a hole in a window made by the former visitors, and releasing a catch.

Susquehanna Silk Mills Awards Remaining Workers of Original Factory Force

One Man and Two Women Presented with Watches in Recognition of 25 Years of Service with Marion Branch

In recognition of 25 years of continuous service with the Susquehanna Silk Mills at its Marion plant, three employes, the only ones remaining from the original working force which went on duty when the mill here began operations on Dec. 8, 1902, were presented yesterday with merit awards from the company.

The three are G. A. Krautter, master mechanic, and Misses Mayme Brigel and Martha Hagerty, who are employed as weavers. Mr. Krautter received a gold pocket watch and wrist watches were presented Miss Brigel and Miss Hagerty.

The presentation was made in accordance with custom which has been in effect at all of the company's plants for a number of years, valuable watches being given to employes at the close of 25 years of continuous service. The gifts were presented the three here yesterday in the office of the local plant by R. H. More of Sunbury, Pa., general superintendent of the company's various mills.

Similar Awards

Three other local employes received similar awards several years ago but a part of their periods of service had been at other mills in Pennsylvania, so that the presentation made yesterday was the first to employes whose service has been entirely at the Marion plant.

Mr. Krautter's home is at 390 Marion st, Miss Brigel resides at 295 Leander st and Miss Hagerty at 374 Thompson st.

The Susquehanna mills, given in the order that they were established, are located at Sunbury, Pa., Marion, Jersey Shore, Pa., Milton, Pa., Lewiston, Pa., Lock Haven, Pa., Elberton, Ga. and Huntington, Pa.

All are thoroughly modern, equipped with the latest type of machinery and of remarkable cleanliness, every possible convenience being provided for efficient operation and for the health and comfort of employes.

Changes Being Made

Extensive changes are now being made in equipment of the local plant, including installation of a large number of new machines. This installation, when completed, will make the Marion mill one of the best and most modern in the country. It is expected that all of the changes will be completed in the spring.

The Marion mill now has an operating force of approximately 400. It is under the management of Superintendent W. E. Bartholomew.

LINK THREE IN GIRL'S MURDER; HICKMAN FLEES

New Police Theory Is That Trio Hacked Child's Body to Pieces

DISCOVER APARTMENT

Analysis of Bloodstains Found in Room Being Made Today

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 21—A new theory that at least three men murdered Marion Parker, and hacked the child's body to pieces was advanced here today.

This belief was born when Edward Stelzered and his wife, who live in the house where William Edward Hickman, identified as the little girl's kidnaper, occupied an apartment, told police they saw Hickman and two other men leaving the building together last Saturday night.

The three men were carrying a suitcase and several mysterious bundles, Stelzered said, adding the time was approximately 7 o'clock, an hour and a half before the kidnaper-killer sold back to Perry M. Parker his child's mutilated body.

Hickman still was at large today, defying the most intensive man-hunt in the history of this region.

Evades Capture

Despite a thorough search of Los Angeles, the suspect continued to evade capture.

Analysis of bloodstains found on the bathroom wall of an apartment here was under way today. This apartment, raided by police, was declared by them to have been occupied by Hickman, who had rented it under the name of Evans.

Clews proving that Hickman had occupied the apartment, and evidence tending to connect him with the kidnaping and slaying of the Parker girl, were reported.

The story of a janitor, to the effect that the occupant of the apartment had transferred several parcels to an automobile Friday, indicated that the girl had been slain and dismembered the day before part of her body was delivered to her father, Perry M. Parker, bank official, for $1,500 ransom, officers asserted.

Fingerprint Evidence

Police declared they had fingerprint and note paper evidence, to indicate Hickman's connection with the crime. A warrant charging the youth with

SEVEN MEN ADDED TO POSTOFFICE FORCE

Christmas Rush Under Way; Both Incoming and Outgoing Mail Heavy

Perhaps the busiest place in the city is the postoffice where today it's about a fifty-fifty break on the incoming and outgoing Christmas mail. A force of seven extra workers was added to the corps of regular employes this morning in anticipation of the rush which is expected to continue until Christmas Eve. Four of the men will work with the parcel post trucks, two will go on as extra carriers and one on special delivery work.

So far this year the biggest day at the postoffice was Monday when the out-going mail began getting well under way and the incoming parcels to arrive. Temporary offices where parcels may be weighed and stamped have been arranged in the lobby of the building, and these have aided materially in keeping the crowd moving and avoiding any delays.

DEFICIT RISING

Further Shortages Found in New Riegel Bank; Total $50,000

Tiffin, Dec. 21—Further shortages in the accounts of the New Riegel, Ohio, state bank which closed Dec. 1, will bring the total deficit to about $50,000, according to an announcement today from C. W. Miller, deputy state bank superintendent.

Miller said he told the stockholders of the bank who met at New Riegel yesterday that they must make good the entire amount before the bank can be reopened. Another meeting is to be held Dec. 28. Most of the stockholders are said to be in favor of reopening the bank.

BRIEF SERVICE ACCOMPANIES ENTOMBMENT

Towering Marble Memorial Erected Here in Honor of Nation's Late Chief Executive Receives Its Dead

RELATIVES AND CLOSE FRIENDS ATTEND

Ritual of Baptist Church Read Over Last Resting Place by Dr. Walter A. King, Ashtabula, Former Marion Pastor

BY HARRY S. ELLIOTT
Star Staff Writer

BURIAL rites were held here today for one of the nation's great men and the life companion who helped him ascend to the pinnacle of fame.

Brief but impressive was the solemn and reverent tribute paid to President and Mrs. Warren G. Harding at the sepulchre where their bodies were placed yesterday to rest for all time with a magnificent marble monument encircling and towering above the tomb as a testimonial of love and esteem from the American people.

In compliance with the wish of those who planned today's services, held at 12 o'clock noon, there was no public gathering of unusual magnitude. Yet the event was of nationwide interest and importance and received prominent mention in newspapers throughout the country.

For it was the burial of a man, Marion's most distinguished son, who rose from the ranks of the plain people to become one of the most beloved of the nation's chief magistrates; and of his wife, his constant companion on the journey to eminence, whose help and influence constituted a predominant element in his career.

Address Given

Services at the tomb, conducted in the presence of relatives and close friends of Mr. and Mrs. Harding, included an address of Dr. Walter A. King, pastor of the First Baptist Church at Ashtabula and former pastor of Trinity Baptist Church in Marion. He spoke briefly regarding the significance and importance of the occasion, commenting reverently on President Harding's record of public service.

Dr. King had been selected to conduct the services and deliver the burial address because of his close acquaintanceship with both President and Mrs. Harding. This bond of friendship was formed while Dr. King was pastor of the local Baptist Church, where Mr. Harding was enrolled as a member and trustee. Dr. King's pastorate here was during the four year period from 1911 to 1915.

In addition to giving the address, Dr. King read the Baptist burial rites.

Dr. King's Address

The complete text of Dr. King's address follows:

"As we gather today in this beautiful expression of a nation's love and gratitude, we recall the pain which gripped our hearts when we heard the newsboy's midnight cry—'Harding is dead!'

"Since then time has assuaged somewhat the anguish of that hour. Time has also hallowed the memory of his name.

"By his side reals the form of his wife, whose devotion to his happiness and success was marked by a sacrifice which only love makes us, hand in hand, man and woman strive to work out the ideals of honesty, love and service which the finger of God paints on the souls of men.

"The time has come for them to sleep in their final resting place on earth; their bodies, guarded by this mausoleum, the expression of a nation's love and gratitude; their spirits, in the keeping of their Heavenly Father, Who was their strength in life and their hope in death; and their memory enshrined in hearts of their friends and loved ones."

Salute Is Fired

Following reading of the Baptist committment rites by Dr. King, he offered prayer in which he touched feelingly and eloquently on the lives and service of both President and Mrs. Harding and the bond of love which linked them during life's journey.

The service opened with scripture readings by Dr. U. S. Davis, pastor of Trinity Baptist Church, in which he selected verses from Psalms as appropriate to the occasion.

In concluding the ceremony, a military salute was fired by a squad of soldiers from the U. S. Army guard detachment on duty at the tomb and taps were sounded by Parks Kennedy, officer of the local American Legion who served as bugler during the World War.

The service, lasting 15 minutes, took place in the center of the mausoleum, where a temporary platform had been constructed before the open sepulchre.

Relatives Seated

Those taking part in the ceremony and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Harding were seated on the platform. The relatives present were Dr. and Mrs. G. T. Harding, Jr., and their son and daughter, Charles and Mary, of Worthington; Dr. G. T. Harding III and wife, of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Denman of Bellefontaine; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph T. Lewis, George DeWolfe and Miss Jean DeWolfe, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Metzger, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Longshore, of Marion.

Dr. G. T. Harding, Sr., father of the president, is in California and was unable to return for the service. Mrs. Usher H. Votaw of Washington, sister of the president was also prevented

COOLIDGE REGRETS INABILITY TO BE PRESENT AT SERVICES TODAY

A personal letter from President Coolidge, received by Hoke Donithen, chairman of the Harding Memorial Executive Committee, expressed the chief executive's regret for being unable to attend today's services at the Harding tomb. The letter follows:

The White House, Washington,
Dec. 17, 1927.

Dear Mr. Donithen:

I have your letter of December 14, saying the memorial is so nearly completed that the bodies of President and Mrs. Harding are to be moved December 21.

I am sorry that it will not be possible for me to be at the ceremonies, as I cannot leave Washington then.

Very truly yours,
Calvin Coolidge.

The president will deliver the address at the dedication ceremonies, planned for next June.

MONGREL FIGURES IN MEMORIAL RITES

A lean, hungry-looking mongrel, with a strain of airedale, again took the stage at the burial services here today for President and Mrs. Harding.

Resembling Laddie Boy, the late president's White House pet, and another animal which took its place in the funeral procession here Aug. 10, 1923, the dog attached itself to the small gathering of relatives and friends as they marched from the street to the monument. He remained in the crowd until the last rites were being said.

As a firing squad lifted rifles to pay military salute the dog leaped from the crowd to the edge of the sepulchre where he stood looking down into the double grave.

None moved to take the dog away. He remained quietly beside the grave until the services were concluded.

Many attached unusual significance to this incident. Years ago when President Harding, then an editor, lost a beloved pet he wrote an editorial that today remains as a classic. A story is told that when the train bearing the body of President Harding from the West to Washington passed through Willard, O., a dog tried to board the train.

And again when the funeral was held here a dog attached itself to the funeral parade. After the president's body had been entombed temporarily in the vault at Marion Cemetery the dog returned daily and stood looking into the vault. He finally was adopted by soldiers on guard at the tomb.

Only Home Folk Stand in Wind-Swept Memorial As Last Rites Are Conducted Over Graves of Hardings

BY EDNA S. DUTTON
Star Staff Writer

THEY rest from their labors. ...e bodies of Warren Ga... Harding, twenty-ninth ...sident of the United States ... King Harding, his wife ...o ruled with him during his ... reign as head of the nation ... laid are in their final earthly ...ing place.

Although it was an act of pa... interest it was only the ... folk who stood in the wind-... enclosure of the beautiful ...ble memorial, the nation's gift, ... their final farewell to neighbors and friends. The small crowd which stood shivering beneath the canopy of gray, snow-filled clouds this morning was a marked contrast to the one four years ago when thousands of people thronged the city's streets, braving a sweltering temperature to pay their respects at the bier of their president, or witness the passing of the funeral cortege.

Bitter Cold

Aside from the bitter cold, which caused motion picture men to slap their hands about their bodies to keep warm and the early arrivals to bundle their coat collars a little closer about their ears, the setting about the flag-draped caskets was one of summer.

A carpet of greenery covered the ground about the vault and wreaths and baskets of beautiful flowers stood out in colorful relief against the cold marble pillars. Three large American flags floated peacefully and gently at the rear of the edifice.

The only touch of a military atmosphere was the presence of the tomb guard which fired a salute and taps which marked the conclusion of the brief service. Notably absent was the frail form of Dr. G. T. Harding, father of President Harding, who is spending the winter in California. Absent too were the familiar figures of members of Cooper Post, No. 117, G. A. R., whose ranks have dwindled since they paid homage to their president only a few years ago, and whose advanced years would not permit their braving the chilly weather. Mingling with the crowd were youths bare of head, men whose locks were tinged with gray. As the last notes of the bugle died away the wail of an infant in arms broke the silence and in another moment the small crowd began to disperse.

SEEK AGREEMENT ON EXTENSION OF ROAD

County Surveyor and C., D. & M. Co. Officials To Confer on Compensation

Possibility of an agreement being reached by the C., D. & M. Electric Co. and officials of Marion County for extension of White Oaks-rd over the interurban company's tracks southwest of Marion was indicated today.

County Surveyor C. R. Leavens has been instructed to meet representatives of the C., D. & M. for the purpose of negotiating an agreement, it was stated. The purpose of the negotiations will be to fix the amount of compensation to be allowed the interurban company.

Should this point be settled, the county will proceed at once with plans for extending White Oaks-rd to the Prospect-pk, a project which has been under consideration for several years.

Injunction Stops Work

An injunction suit brought by the C., D. & M. has prevented the county from proceeding with the work, the interurban company objecting to the establishment of a grade crossing.

Judge Scofield decided the case in favor of the county and his decision was affirmed in the court of appeals in a recent ruling. The next step, should the C., D. & M. decide to carry the case higher, would be an application for a hearing in the supreme court. Although no definite announcement has been made, it was indicated today that no appeal will be made to the state court.

In the event that Leavens and the C., D. & M. officials are unable to agree on compensation, the amount will be fixed by a jury in the court of common pleas.

NEW JERSEY MURDER LIKE REMUS SLAYING

Iron Pipe Salesman To Be Arraigned on Charge of Killing Woman

Burlington, N. J., Dec. 21—A parallel of the Remus case in many ways to-day in the shooting of Mrs. Isabelle James Sheidaker, 32, for which Frederick Piani, 37, an iron pipe salesman, was to be arraigned on a murder charge.

Piani is alleged to have confessed he shot and killed the pretty blonde widow, with whom he is said to have been friendly, and then attempted to take his own life.

Like Mrs. Remus, Mrs. Sheidaker was in her automobile when she was attacked. Like Remus, Piani is said to have followed her out of the car across a field and shot her.

Mrs. Sheidaker is the widow of a wealthy steel man, killed here in an automobile accident last spring. A friend, Mrs. Charles Lampson, who was held as a witness, said Piani had swerved across the road to block the Sheidaker car, and then stopped. Mrs. Sheidaker immediately got out, apparently badly frightened, and started to run through the woods.

Piani jumped from his car and ran after the woman, according to police who later questioned him.

He seized her by the arm and held her, while he fired four times, point blank, at the screaming woman. Then, according to Mrs. Lampson, he put the pistol into his mouth and fired the one remaining shot.

Guard against sore throat

We've rolled around to it again—the season when a wicked cold or a nasty sore throat may lay you up for weeks. Most of us can't afford that; nothing coming in; everything going out.

In avoiding colds and sore throat, one of your most valuable aids is Listerine, the safe antiseptic.

After exposure to cold weather, or sudden changes in temperature, after mingling with crowds, after your feet have been wet—gargle with Listerine when you get home.

It may be—and very probably will be—the means of saving you a trying siege of illness. Listerine, being antiseptic, immediately attacks the countless bacteria that lodge in the mouth, waiting until bodily resistance is low to strike.

For your own protection against cold weather complaints you ought to make a daily habit of rinsing the mouth and gargling with Listerine. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo.

Marion County Chapter, Red Cross Giving Service of Increasing Scope and Value, Annual Reports Show

Nutrition Work Among Children Considered Important Contribution

Service of increasing scope and value is being rendered under direction of the Marion County Red Cross Chapter among children of the community, reports made public at Red Cross headquarters showed today.

Of special value is the work being done by the two local Red Cross nurses, Mrs. Clara Geer and Mrs. Lota Maugans, and the nutrition bureau of the chapter, headed by Mrs. L. K. Warner, the records show.

The reports, which were submitted to officers of the Red Cross at the annual meeting held recently, are made by the two nurses and Mrs. Warner.

A fourth report, prepared by Fire Chief McFarland, chairman of the Red Cross life saving service committee, reviews the work done in teaching and demonstrating first aid and rescue methods during the last year. This is also an important branch of the local chapter's program of public service, the report shows.

Milk Classes

Two milk classes maintained at Silver Street and Glenwood schools have achieved remarkable results in building up undernourished children. The Silver Street class is now in its fourth year and the one at Glenwood was started recently.

An example of the beneficial results is found in Mrs. Warner's report, which states that all children at the Silver Street school have gained in weight as a consequence of the milk diet. The service is maintained for the benefit of pupils in the first three grades found to be suffering from mal-nutrition.

The Silver Street class now consists of 60 children and is in charge of Mrs. Maugans one of the Red Cross nurses.

"If malnutrition persists," Mrs. Warner says in her report, "the child has a poor chance to become a healthy adult and falls an easy prey to tuberculosis."

Children Gain Weight

The report states that most of the children placed on the milk diet attain their correct weight and in exceptional cases badly underfed children gain as much as 15 pounds.

"The principal, Mr. Emmons, says that he and the teachers see a difference in the children who have been built up by drinking milk for five months," Mrs. Warner states. "Toward the end of the year they are improved in their appearance. They do better in their lessons, are more alert. Their attendance is better for they do not catch every cold and contagious disease that comes along. He says that Silver-st mothers are buying more milk for their homes.

In commenting on the new class started at Glenwood school, Mrs. Warner says that a month ago 78 children in the first five grades were 10 per cent or more underweight. Last week Mrs. Geer, the Red Cross nurse in charge weighed these children and found that they registered an average of more than two pounds average gain.

Parents Help

Many of the children are supplied with milk bought by the parents and the remainder of the cost is met by donations from outside sources. The Federation of Women's Clubs gave $150 to the fund last year and other help came from the King's Daughters and Ladies Auxiliary of the American Legion.

Supervision over this nutrition service is only one of the numerous duties performed by the two Red Cross nurses, the reports show.

Included in Mrs. Geer's work, for example, were 176 school visits, individual inspection of 1,047 school pupils, assistance given doctors in examination of 240 pupils, assistance given city health commissioner in administering 984 Schick tests and 1,042 toxin anti-toxin treatments, 608 nursing visits to homes, 26 health talks delivered, 119 instructive visits, and numerous other calls on adults and children. Mrs. Geer also made 212 calls pertaining to the Kiwanis Club health camp, which was under her supervision.

Mrs. Maugans' report lists 651 nursing visits, 160 home visits in the interest of the local clinic, 147 visits to schools, inspection of 758 pupils, assistance given doctor in examining 212, assistance in 1,752 Schick tests, 40 home visits in orthopedic cases, and help given in clinics at Prospect, Pleasant Township, Dreadnought, Oak Greenwood, Olney, Silver and St. Mary's schools.

According to present plans, the Red Cross Chapter will maintain its nursing service throughout all of next year.

DITCH PETITION IS DISMISSED BY BOARD

Commissioners Consider Remonstrances Filed by Adjoining Land-Owners

Petition for construction of the Shumaker ditch in Tully Township, filed by J. L. Shumaker, was dismissed by the county commissioners following hearing yesterday. The dismissal was the result of remonstrances filed by various land-owners, who said that the improvement was not needed.

The remonstrators asserted that a clean-out of the ditch is all that is needed and action of the commissioners sustained that contention.

The county surveyor's report on proposed construction of the Clark ditch in Claridon Township was received by the commissioners and hearing set for Jan. 18 at 10 o'clock.

This improvement was petitioned for by the village of Caledonia through the mayor, W. A. Crum. It is one of the most important ditch projects proposed in the eastern part of the county in several years, being planned to provide drainage for Caledonia and vicinity.

Wayward Charlie Becomes One of Most Active Salvation Army Workers Here

A man may be down but he's never down so deep that he can not pull himself up, providing he has help from a Higher Power, some assistance from some one who still believes he is worth while. If you don't believe this ask Charlie Hickman, of the Salvation Army, formerly known as "Charlie, the Soak."

One of the hardest workers in the Army now, is Charlie, and he means it too. His principal concern at present, aside from assisting in carrying on the work in the army, is caring for the shelter provided for transient "down and outers," which he has fitted up with cots and shake-downs in a room at the rear of the army hall, N. Main st. And the cold weather has brought Charlie lots of customers too. The new arrangement is an appreciable saving to the army, which heretofore housed the transients at a very moderate hotel.

Charlie's life before his association with the army was made up of drifting from one saloon to another and from one bootlegger to another. That is when he had money. When he had no money he was either working, (and those who know him say he was a good worker and a hard taskmaster), or sobering up in jail.

First Contact

It was in the Marion County jail that Charlie the Soak had his first contact with the Salvation Army, and his was not the most receptive and sociable disposition to work on either. Visit after visit was made by the army prison officer and never did he seem to penetrate the heart of hard-boiled Charlie.

Charlie knows that it was a power higher than mere that led him stagger ing up N. Main-st, and into the Salvation Army Hall. It was an entirely new experience for "the soak," and he hardly knew what to do when he came to enough to know he was attending a religious service. For almost the first time in his life he was nervous and bashful. The warm and cordial reception accorded him that night brought him back night after night in a more or less sober state.

Becomes Saved

It was a grand night in Marion's Salvation Army Hall when Charlie the soak became Charlie the saved and took his pledge of allegiance to the National flag and the Salvation Army.

All this was several years ago and Charlie does not tell his story to every one. It is hard to think of the new Charlie, now erect and manly in his neat-fitting Salvation Army uniform, going about doing the work of the army, as "Charlie the Soak," and his old friends, as well as his host of new ones rejoice with him in his "being born again."

Make This A Home Christmas And A Merry One!

NO matter where the nomad spirit may carry one, at Christmas time, one's heart is at home. In merrie England, centuries ago, the rafters rang with merriment and the wassail bowl was passed around many times, in celebration of the homecoming of the warrior. Again at Christmas time, families unite in the glow of cheerful hearth fires, and friends gather for an interval of rest and cheer. The love of home burns as brightly as the Yule log itself. And the love of home expresses itself in gifts for the Home!

Fine Pieces of Furniture

JUROR STICKS TO INTIMIDATION STORY

Edward J. Kidwell Says Prosecutors "Browbeat" Him into Inquiry Affidavits

Washington, Dec. 21— Edward J. Kidwell, member of the Fall-Sinclair conspiracy jury, stuck doggedly to his story today that he had been intimidated by the district attorney's office into signing "several false affidavits" for use in the criminal contempt trial of Harry F. Sinclair, William J. Burns, and four associates.

Kidwell, under questioning by George E. Hoover, Sinclair attorney, had stated that he had been forced to sign affidavits alleging that two Burns detectives had approached him during the oil trial and engaged him in conversation. Movements of the Burns operatives in shadowing the oil jury are the basis for the contempt trial.

Assistant United States Attorney James O'Leary, who was directly accused by Kidwell of browbeating, started examination of the witness today. He showed Kidwell one of the affidavits—which he, Kidwell, had personally dictated—and asked him if it was one which he had been forced to sign.

"Yes," said Kidwell, "that is one of several."

The district attorney's office later plans to produce witnesses who will swear Kidwell asked for the privilege of making the affidavits in question.

from attending because of her husband's illness.

The Harding Memorial Association was represented by Hoke Donithen, George B. Knapp, O. S. Rapp, F. A. Huber, C. D. Schaffner, Dr. C. W. Sawyer and J. F. Prendergast, local members of the board of trustees.

Dawes' Message

Trustees living in other cities were unable to be present, messages of regret being received from J. S. Frelinghuysen, former United States senator from New Jersey, John Barton Payne, head of the American Red Cross, H. M. Daugherty, former attorney general, Harry S. New, postmaster general, Charles E. Hughes, former secretary of state, James J. Davis, secretary of labor, C. M. Schwab, president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, John Hays Hammond, former United States senator, and Vice President Charles G. Dawes.

The message from Vice President Dawes, which was similar to those received from officials of the memorial association and other notables who expressed regret for being prevented from coming here today, read as follows:

"It is a great grief to me that I am unable to be in Marion on December 21 when the bodies of my dear friends, President Harding and his wife, are transferred to their final resting place. If it were not for the fact that the senate is in session on that day, nothing could detain me from coming."

Governor Donahey also sent a similar message.

Take Motion Pictures

Included among those from a distance attending the services were Henry Hornbostle of Pittsburgh, architect who designed the memorial tomb, and a delegation of members of the Columbus Kiwanis Club, headed by J. J. Carroll, president-elect. Dr. G. T. Harding Jr. is the present head of the club.

A number of wreaths and floral tokens were received and placed about the tomb. They included two wreaths sent by Rodman Wanamaker, New York business man and close friend of Mr. and Mrs. Harding, and a basket of roses and chrysanthemums from friends in Cleveland.

Reporters and photographers representing practically all of the leading news and motion picture concerns were here for the services. The newsreel men filming scenes as the ceremony progressed.

To Seal Sepulchre

With the burial ceremonies completed, workman at the tomb began immediate preparations for placing the concrete and marble coverings over the sepulchre, closing from view for all time the massive hermetically-sealed sarcophagi, which hold the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Harding.

It is expected that a day or more may be required for installing these coverings and sealing the sepulchre. A concrete slab, weighing several tons will first be placed over the caskets and above this there are to be several layers of marble estimated to weigh 15 tons.

The U. S. army guard which has been on duty at the Marion Cemetery vault, where the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Harding were entombed prior to being removed to their permanent burial place yesterday, will be stationed at the memorial tomb until after the date of its dedication, according to present plans. The dedication, it is thought, will take place in June.

Expect Huge Gathering

The ceremonies at that time, it is expected, will bring to Marion one of the largest throngs ever assembled in the city, comparing in a measure with the tremendous gathering of people from all sections of the country who were here on the day of President Harding's funeral, Friday, Aug. 10, 1923.

This throng, so vast that its magnitude could not be estimated with any degree of accuracy, was regarded as one of the most remarkable expressions of esteem ever accorded a chief executive or any other citizen of note.

The funeral tribute came as the close to a period of nationwide mourning which began the night of Aug. 2, 1923, when the startling news of President Harding's death was flashed over the wires from San Francisco, where the end had come suddenly while he was in his room at the Palace Hotel. At his side when the summons came was Mrs. Harding, his close companion at the hour of death as she had been throughout life.

Taken Ill on Tour

She had accompanied him on his last presidential tour, a trip which had taken him through the northwest into Alaska. It was on this tour that the illness which culminated in his death developed.

While the nation was stunned by the loss of a chief executive, whose record of service and charm of personality had endeared him to its millions of citizens, Marion's grief was more deep-seated. Here he was mourned, not only as a president, but as one of the home-town folk, one who but a few years before had been an outstanding and familiar figure in the community.

Always an enthusiastic advocate and worker for all movements and enterprises intended for the betterment and progress of Marion, his interest in the town and its welfare never lessened even after matters of greater importance occupied his attention.

Planned To Return

He had planned to return to Marion after his service as president came to a close, here to resume his former associations with friends of a lifetime and to take up again his labor of love for the town where the basis of his career was laid.

The death of Mrs. Harding, which occurred here on Nov. 21, 1924, little more than a year following the passing of the president, brought nation-wide expressions of sorrow. Possessing a remarkable personality, she had occupied an usually prominent place in public affairs while at the White House and won distinction as being one of history's outstanding First Ladies of the land.

She was more than a social leader in affairs at Washington. She was a close student of government and by keeping in intimate touch with legislation and other important matters coming up during Mr. Harding's administration, was able to serve as a valuable advisor on many occasions.

For a number of years prior to her death she had been forced to contend with physical ailments, but in spite of these conditions remained active in helping the president handle the tremendous problems which confronted him during his administration.

In this she gave evidence of the unbounded courage and fortitude which were predominant elements in her make-up.

Movement Started

Shortly after President Harding's death, the movement to raise funds for erecting a suitable memorial in his honor was started and the stately marble edifice where today's services were held was the outcome.

The structure is regarded as one of the finest examples of architecture in the country. Its massive marble columns, 48 in number, are intended to represent the states making up the nation which he served and to symbolize the unity and harmony which he sought to weld more securely. The design is original and the only one of its kind in existence.

The memorial tomb is virtually completed. Comparatively few finishing details remain to be worked out preparatory to the dedication ceremonies. This includes pointing up and cleaning of the marble surface and landscaping of the grounds. When all work is completed and the memorial is ready for dedication, it will present a scene of surpassing beauty, a fitting testimonial to one of the plain people who became their leader and finally gave his life in their service.

VACATION FOR PUBLIC SCHOOLS UNDER WAY

Parochial Students To Attend Classes Remainder of Week; Programs Given

Approximately 6,000 Marion school children tripped gleefully home from their duties today for a week and a half Christmas vacation. School is scheduled to re-open Tuesday, Jan. 3. The mid-year holiday was slightly shortened this year on account of the week of school lost in September due to an infantile paralysis epidemic.

Before the dismissal this afternoon, Christmas programs and treats were given in the various grades and in the first period in the morning classes at Harding and the Junior High Schools.

St. Mary's Parochial Schools will close Friday for Christmas vacation and will re-open Monday, Jan. 2.

FORCE COMPROMISE

Backers of New Bill Claim Enough Votes to Shelve McNary-Haugen

Washington, Dec. 21—With a quiet but intensive campaign being carried on to force a congressional compromise on farm relief, backers of the movement today issued their first definite claim of sufficient votes to shelve the McNary-Haugen bill.

Having put this bill out of the way, compromise advocates are confident that they can pass a bill that will satisfy President Coolidge and pacify farmers of the country.

Rep. Fred S. Purnell, Republican, of Indiana, who broke with the administration to take a prominent part in last year's fight for the McNary-Haugen bill, declared that he had interviewed 40 former supporters who now favor a compromise.

kidnaping and murder has been issued. Rewards totalling $100,000 are on his head.

Hickman, police say, became the object of suspicion when investigation revealed he had been employed as a messenger in the bank where the Parker girl's father is assistant cashier. Parker had refused to keep him in employment after the youth had been arrested on a forgery charge, admitted his guilt, and placed on probation. Revenge for this, according to the authorities, is believed to have been the motive for the kidnaping and slaying.

With lots of mute evidence, found in a veritable "horror chamber" in a Bellevue-av apartment house, the deserted lair of the killer fox, these investigators were reconstructing, piecemeal, the most atrocious crime in the annals of a civilized community.

Bloodstains in Tub

Bloodstains found spattered inside a porcelain bathtub, in which the girl is believed to have been butchered, and blood splotches on the bathroom wall were being analyzed for proof that here was where Marion was put to death.

A half-eaten box of chocolate-coated cherries and a paper bag of hazelnuts, found in the "murder house," were also seized to analyze for possible traces of poison which may have been given to the child-victim before she was hacked to pieces.

Small quantities of oatmeal porridge and tapioca pudding, found in the kitchenette, which convinced detectives that the girl had dined in her death cell, also were being analyzed.

which makes skeleton faces of the waves. The temperature hovers around freezing point, too cold for divers to work and live.

Time Has Elapsed

The time limit of 72 hours, previously set by navy officials for life to subsist in the submarine, has elapsed. It was Saturday afternoon when the undersea vessel was rammed to the bottom by the coast guard cutter Paulding.

Admiral Frank H. Brumby declared today that the temperature within the S-4 is only two degrees higher than the 34 degrees registered in the water clutching it.

While Admiral Brumby said that the navy would continue "to stand by" and wait for a break in the weather, he declared that the "absolute outside" on which life might be expected to continue in the hulk would be reached by 6 o'clock tonight.

"But this is only my personal opinion," he qualified.

The admiral said that at the first favorable opportunity a diver will be sent down to put oxygen into the torpedo tubes. A method to supply air by means of which the submarines S-6 communication tube, previously contemplated had been discarded.

Abandon Christmas Plans

"If a diver can get oxygen through the torpedo tube he will wait to hear a signal from the interior that it has been received, said the admiral.

"Suppose they do not signal?" asked a practical reporter.

"Then they won't get it," replied the admiral.

The admiral expects to spend the day sorting over the thousands of plans received suggesting possible rescue measures. It was said all plans would be considered and any feasible ones adopted immediately, in whole or in part.

The town people have abandoned hope completely. Prayers for the lost men aboard were offered up today throughout the cape.

Plans for a community Christmas tree and festival to be held in the public square was given up today and choral practice of the children for the gay occasion was stopped.

Receive More Pontoons

Three more pontoons to be used in raising the submarine arrived today.

Joseph A. McGinley, father of Lieut. Joseph H. McGinley, one of the lost men, is in town, waiting to take the body of his son back home to Norristown, Pa.

McGinley charged the navy with laxness in not having a submarine tender accompanying the S-4 on its test trip.

"Why doesn't the navy tell the nation that the boys are dead instead of keeping up false hope?" he said.

McGinley does not believe the seven taps heard by the S-8 last night came from the S-4.

FIVE MEN HELD ON WEST SISTER ISLAND

Will Renew Efforts To Rescue Marooned Party on Lake Erie

Toledo, Dec. 21—Efforts to rescue several men believed to be marooned on West Sister Island, a lonely lighthouse station off the coast of Lake Erie, were to be resumed today.

Two fishermen, said to be William Myers and Lewis Francke, are reported to have lost control of their boat and been washed onto the island when the lake became rough late Thursday. Distress signals from the island yesterday prompted the coast guard at Marblehead to attempt to reach the island in three rum chasers.

However, ice forced the rescuers to turn back. An airplane piloted by two newspapermen circled over the island and dropped food. Five men are on the island, according to reports brought back by the plane, including the light-house keeper. A tug is to be chartered to go to the island today if other rescue efforts are unsuccessful.

Daily Proverb—"It is the property of an old sinner to find delight in reviewing his own villainies in others."

"Not one man in 1,000 is capable of being a successful rogue," says Ed Howe. "Any one may succeed as an honest man." Let's be honest, and play safe.

A Sandusky man found four nuggets of gold worth $3.50 in the gizzard of a goose won by him as a prize at a recent Toledo shoot. Probably a direct descendant of the goose of fabled story that laid the golden eggs.

Over 1,600 more motor licenses were taken out in this county this year than last. At this rate of gain, it takes a blown-in-the-bottle optimist to see any hope for the survival of us true aristocrats.

A Chicago woman concluded an argument with her husband by hitting him over the head with her brassie and knocking him out. Manifestly there are hazards in golf never contemplated in the laying out of a course.

A New York court has decided that sending a "silly" letter is not a crime, but some of those printed in connection with breach-of-promise cases tend to make one lean to the view that it should be.

John D. Rockefeller says he thinks "money is a good thing to have if we know how to use it properly." Huh! We know scores of people who would be willing to swear that it is, and that, too, without either question or condition.

Dr. Hrdlicka has presented to the Smithsonian institution eight female gorilla skulls recently brought back by him from abroad. The way these scientists keep the monkey business in the public gaze might almost lead one to believe that they take delight in annoying the good people of Tennessee.

It is stated that, "owing to the excessive duties on Irish and Scotch whiskies," the smuggling of illicit stuffs with awful kicks to them has reached proportions in England almost comparable with the rum running in the United States. What can the people putting out talk like that possibly have against the transatlantic steamship companies?

There is no occasion for surprise over the announcement from Indianapolis that the grand jury out there is striking pay dirt in its investigation of charges of intimidation of witnesses. When people assume to themselves that they are above the law it's hardly probable that they will hesitate about such a comparatively trifling offense as the intimidation of witnesses.

The astronomers, having figured for another day, now declare that Skjellerup's comet will not come so far north as originally predicted and will be visible up here only through telescopes. It's the old, old story. These comelary visitors never play up to the advance notices and the most of them turn out to be bitter disappointments if not unmitigated frauds as heavenly spectacles.

Remus Found Not Guilty.

The wires tell us that the jury which has been sitting down in Cincinnati in the trial of George Remus has found him not guilty of the charge of murdering his wife, basing its finding wholly upon its belief that he was insane at the time he took his wife's life. Under the law, as we understand it, Remus will now be taken before the Hamilton county probate court on an insanity charge.

It will be interesting to note the conduct of the former bootlegger when he appears before the probate court and compare it with his conduct during the progress of the trial which has resulted in clearing him of the charge of murder. We believe that Remus, acting as attorney for himself, was his own best witness even though he did not take the stand. We are frank to say that we look for an entirely different course of procedure on his part when he appears in the probate court, and it would not surprise us in the least were he there found to be sane. We may be utterly mistaken in this view, but it is our belief, and we are not afraid to express it even though the result may be far from what we anticipate.

It is not our part to question either the verdict of a jury or the route it may take to reach a verdict in any particular case. But we can not help but feel that it must have been a great relief to the jury which has just cleared Remus of a murder charge to know that it was possible to find him innocent on the ground of being of unsound mind at the time the homicide was committed. There unquestionably were developments during the trial which tended to arouse a high degree of sympathy for the defendant, developments which would have proved decidedly trying to any jury. They might not have established justification for murder. As we understand it, murder is never justified. But they did establish ground work for sympathy, and we can conceive how some juries, convinced of the truth of some allegations such as were made during the trial, might be inclined to consider the mad act of Remus justifiable homicide.

To the Keeping of Mother Earth.

Today at noon, with ample ceremony, and what was mortal of the late President Warren G. Harding was committed to the keeping of Mother Earth in the spot where rests the Harding memorial. The massive sarcophagi containing the two bronze caskets had previously been lowered into the tomb, and following the ceremonies, the huge cover to covering was placed in position and sealed preparatory to the placing of the fifteen tons of white marble which will surmount it.

It was the wish of the late president, expressed in his will, that he be buried in Marion cemetery and, characteristic of the man of simple tastes he was, that a plain shaft should mark his grave. The site of his tomb is probably a part of Marion's beautiful "City of the Dead" but instead of the simple shaft his body and that of his wife and devoted companion through life have a final resting place surrounded by the graceful circular white marble colonnade the beautiful memorial made possible by the free-will offerings of his friends and admirers in this and other lands.

The memorial which shows its graceful proportions just beyond the southern boundary of our city marks to the world at large the last resting place of the president, but we of Marion who knew Warren G. Harding best as a fellow-citizen and friend need no such memorial to him. His memory is enshrined in our hearts forever.

The department of agriculture announces that the American farmer received approximately $635,146,000 more for his products this year than he did in 1926. This is not exactly what we would consider rendering aid and comfort to the champions of farm relief.

Mrs. Ruth Snyder's attorney is attacking the character of Judd Gray in the hope of saving the life of his client. Having made him an animal, Mrs. Snyder is hardly in position to complain of any acts upon his part of beastliness.

A Glasgow cable says that the Scots are forsaking whisky for beer. Henceforth and forever more we refuse to accept as true the contention that the leopard can not change its spots. From this time on we will have to be shown.

The Pennsylvania man beaten up in a student riot over in Roumania has been awarded $50,000 compensation by the Roumanian government. A case or two more like that and there is liable to be an exodus from America to Roumania.

A news story from Illinois tells us that 100 pupils of the Rock Island High school went out on a strike for the reason that the two-weeks vacation anticipated by them had been curtailed to ten days. Sometimes we are inclined to feel that great good could be worked to a part of the school youth of the land by a renaissance of the paddle.

The Boston Transcript says effort is being made to make American men "clothes conscious." Can it be that that Transcript man has never watched men pass mirrors or show windows which serve the same purpose?

Representative Cochran has introduced a bill in the lower house of congress providing a fine of $5,000 and two years' imprisonment for obtaining evidence of prohibition violations by or through gas and electric meter readers. Mr. Cochran is not only a resident of Missouri, but seems to be from Missouri also on the proposition that the eighteenth amendment is paramount to the constitution as a whole.

The lower house of congress has voted to increase by $100,000,000 that $165,000,000 previously authorized for the public building program, which again brings out one of the chief dangers of governmental prosperity. Our patriots simply can not be happy till they had taken advantage of it to see that a little building will be done where it will do them the greatest good.

Agitators started a riot at a meeting of the Cleveland city council when their demand for a fag day for the benefit of the unemployed, the use of the city public hall for a benefit dance and an investigation into the administration of the community fund and associated charities up there was referred to the committee on welfare instead of being given immediate consideration. Meeting an appeal for charity is one thing and submitting to a hold up is quite another. And it may be said, in passing, that there is a growing feeling that the fag day business is being overdone.

Poems That Live.

NEXT OF KIN.

And all night long
On the roof of the train
Came the steady beat
Of the prairie rain;
The whole night through
On the plains around
The beat of the rain
On the frozen ground

But [illegible]
And all [illegible]
And all [illegible]
A light [illegible]
And the sheep [illegible]
Dreamed [illegible]

In the shadowy rain
Of the wintry trees
Stood the sleeping cows
Of the honey bees,
And the good brown earth
Scarce met the sight
For the quiet folds
Were furrowed white

A late wind chanted
"All is done"
A late bird trilled,
And the passing sun
And the curling cloud
And the drifting mist
Were moonstone robe
And amethyst.

And the wind lay down
At the edge of the sky
And the bird's gray wings
Flew far and high.
The sheep from the fields
Were folded in,
Winter is autumn's
Next of kin.

All May Have Fine Skins.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Everybody admires a beautiful skin. No matter how irregular the features may be, if the skin is clear and firm and smooth it overshadows every defect in facial contour. The peaches and cream complexion, the delicate olive tint, the bronze or burnished type—it matters not what type or coloring may be present, it attracts and holds the eye.

You may see a face so striking in its appearance that you immediately set the owner down as "beautiful." Careful study of the features may show that they are far from perfect. The nose may not be right, the cheek-bones may be high, or the face may be pinched.

The fact that I have just stated explains why many a face considered beautiful does not photograph well. The picture shows the features, but leaves out the perfection of the wonderful skin.

There can be no doubt that irregular features are forgotten when the covering is free from blemishes. It is true, too, that perfect features go for nothing if the skin is rough and pimply.

You have it in your power to make and keep a lovely skin. The first step is cleanliness.

When I say this I mean cleanliness of the body and cleanliness of the intestinal tract. Needless to add, cleanliness of the skin of the face and neck must be had.

You can not be clean without water, abundance of water, inside and outside. The poisons of the body can not be dissolved and carried away without water. There can be no clearness of skin without a cleansed interior.

There must be vigorous exercise, producing free perspiration, to cleanse the pores of the skin. Likewise, this sort of exercise gives a beautiful pinkness to the face.

If your pores are large, they may not be self-cleansing. Without the vigorous use of a wash cloth, the dirt is not removed. Even then it may be necessary to wipe off the skin with alcohol and then cover it with a cleansing cream. In its turn the cream is carefully wiped away, leaving a clean surface.

The pores of the nose are likely to be large. If they accumulate dirt they add an unpleasant appearance. Pretty soon a pimple forms and the beauty is spoiled.

Everybody should wash the face and neck thoroughly before retiring. Then a cleansing cream may be smeared on the nose and left till morning. After washing with warm water and soap, gentle pressing will empty the pores. Without this effort there may be pimples all the time.

Pastry and confectionery must be taken in limited quantities and at meal time only. The blood must have a chance the rest of the time to cleanse the system. If it is loaded with food it can not carry off waste.

Green vegetables, fruit and salads should be taken every day. Then with plenty of water to drink you are on your way to beauty.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

B. H. Q.—What should a girl weigh who is fifteen years old and five feet four inches tall?

2. What can I do to straighten slightly rounded shoulders?

A.—For her age and height she should weigh about 110 pounds.

2. Try wearing a brace.

E. L. Q. I am a boy of sixteen, and although I feel well my complexion is very yellow. What causes this and what can be done to correct it?

A.—Probably due to poor elimination. Correct your diet, drink lots of water between meals and keep the system clear. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

T. S. Q. What will correct constipation?

A.—Plenty of fresh fruits and green vegetables, water between meals and plenty of outdoor exercise. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

T. C. Q. What will cure stammering?

A.—I would suggest that you make inquiry at your local board of education for information regarding their classes for speech defect. There are good ones throughout the country where such defects are corrected. Nervousness is a frequent cause of the trouble.

R. P. Q. What can be done for a pitted skin? Why do milk cause more acne if the person has a tendency to this skin trouble?

A.—Hot and cold applications used alternately for ten minutes night and morning should help to diminish large pores. The excessive use of powder and cold cream will clog the pores and coarsen the grain of the skin.

2. Any food rich in fats will have a tendency to accentuate the condition. Watch the diet and keep the system clean. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question. Copyright, 1927.

Dr. Copeland will answer for readers of this paper questions on medicinal, hygienic and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. Where the subject of a letter is such that it can not be published in this column, Dr. Copeland will, when the question is a proper one, write you personally if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is enclosed. Address all communications to Dr. Royal S. Copeland, in care of this office.

Editorial Comment.

ARBITRARY SELF-RIGHTEOUSNESS

By the senate's action in refusing to seat Mr. Smith and Mr. Vare, the states of Illinois and Pennsylvania have at this moment half the representation to which, under the constitution, they are entitled. They will continue to be denied full representation for an indefinite period of time.

The principle on which the senate has acted is that a majority constitutes a quorum to do business and that a majority of this quorum may refuse to honor a certificate of election, and that the senator-elect has no right to be heard in his own defense and tried on the charges against him. If Messrs. Smith and Vare are heard it is by grace of the senate and not by right.

The senate has further declared that a majority of a quorum may refuse to seat the chosen representative of a state for any reason it sees fit to adopt. The power, as Senator Reed, of Missouri, said, is absolute. It makes no difference that these two men meet all the qualifications specifically laid down in the constitution. It makes no difference that they were chosen by the voters of their states at elections which are not contested. It makes no difference that they are not charged with the violation of any state or federal statute. It is sufficient that they are offensive to the undefined moral sense of a majority of a quorum.

By this action the right of the states to equal representation in the senate, the right of the electors to be represented by men chosen by themselves, is subject to a very broad qualification. No man may now be sworn as senator of the United States who does not happen to suit the prevailing taste of a majority of a quorum. Above the law, above the electorate, now sits a new authority which has the last word as to how a state shall be represented and by whom.

This is not representative government in any genuine meaning of the word. This is not federalism in any genuine meaning of the word. This is arbitrary self-righteousness. This is lawlessness and hysteria.—New York World.

AMERICA AND OURSELVES.

Sir Auckland Geddes, a former British ambassador to the United States, made an astonishing remark in opening the branch of the English-Speaking union. He said that the Americans in the mass do not understand us or our needs at all, and that we in the mass do not really understand them or their needs. We believe Sir Auckland to be right, though, unlike him, we do not worry about it. But it is an odd result to show for three decades of the "hands across the sea" business, the Pilgrims' dinners, the English-Speaking union's luncheons, endless perorations, articles and addresses and incidentally a war fought for a few months side by side as members of one team. On the testimony of this very competent observer there are still, at one end of it all, enormous gaps in the two peoples' comprehension of one another.

But does it much matter? Does it rather not show that Anglo-American relations are at their best when they are least discussed, and that all his well meaning passion for propaganda produces no positive and beneficient result one half so powerful as the reaction and the antagonisms and the suspicions it inevitably tends to provoke? It is really a waste of time to attempt to manufacture any further ties than those that self-interest, a huge volume of personal and commercial intercourse and the plain facts of international politics have already rubbed into the consciousness of all thinking people on both sides of the Atlantic. Anglo-American relations are the last in the world to need gush, rhetoric, or advertisement. Unfortunately they have been in the past the greatest victims of these disturbers of international sanity.—London Express.

The new claim is made that science has found substance that transforms haze into electricity. If this claim proves true and a practical method is evolved, it would be hard to overestimate the value of the discovery. Little use of diggers coal or utilizing any other old-fashioned method to get power if electricity can be developed right out of the limitless light of the sun.

Let's imagine that our ways and means and measurements of time there are in the universe. Our year, for example, has 365 days. But a year on the moon has only twelve days and nights in it. On the planet Neptune, much farther from the sun than the earth is, the year is 165 times as long as ours. A Neptune girl, born 2 000 years ago, as we measure time, would be only seventeen. A reasonable courtship on the planet Neptune, measured as we measure time, might last 300 years.

The universe wasn't made for man or for the earth and its beings exclusively. A flake of sawdust in one of the Great lakes represents the earth in relation to the other bodies that whirl through the measureless space of the universe.

"God made electrons to be his assistants in the creation of the universe," says Michael Pupin, famous teacher at Columbia university. "It is the service of the electron which carries the human voice around the globe, it carries the power from coal mines and mountain streams to our homes and makes us comfortable. It pulls our trains."

But nobody knows where, when and how electrons, the smallest units of matter, were made. Uncle solve that mystery and science will have solved the riddle of life and the universe. Who made electrons? Whom, how, and above all, why?

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Dec. 21.—New Yorkers are often unable to adjust themselves to the city's lines no matter how long they live here. The town is constantly shifting and changing in kaleidoscopic patterns. The business district of today is the residential district of tomorrow and vice versa.

Yesterday I asked a taxi-driver to drive me to one of the best-known hotels in town. It was seven blocks away. He had never heard of it. "I'm a lower East Side driver, built he explained. It is not unusual to run across Manhattanites who have never been to Hoboken.

When the week I unintentionally gave the address of the Friars' club to an inquiring argonaut as Forty-fourth street, and a few minutes later passed the edifice on Forty-fourth street. A half hour afterward the bewildered watch was searching Broadway for another Friars address, given him by a policeman.

In prior I took him in hand and led him to the club's portals. And it was George Ade Davis, who, arriving at the Pennsylvania station shortly after its completion, followed suggestion after suggestion of uniformed attendants as to the proper means of reaching the street.

After many futile efforts he wired to a friend at the Lotos club. Plans and expeditions to get me out of the Pennsylvania station. He made own notes and Apenstorf and engaged sandwiches to last until morning.' But there is the story told of Ed Nolan, the Los Angeles banker.

Mr. Nolan was on his way from his hotel to an address on Park avenue to pick up guests for the theater. Caught in traffic tides, he spent agonizing moments looking at his watch. On the west side of Forty-Second street, he took advantage of a halt to dash into a telegraph office.

From there he dispatched a wire to his waiting guests, reading "Have crossed Forty-Second street. All is well." New York is so big and towering locations become a blurr. If you want to go to an address six months out you go with a feeling it likely isn't there any longer, and are a little surprised if it is.

The elevator complex has become a leading Gotham phobia. There are many people who refuse to be carried up or down with a swish in skyscrapers. They are willing to walk up several floors above the street level, but if business calls them higher they make the engagement one for luncheon.

Indeed, it is probable most of the important business deals in New York are transacted across the luncheon table. A business man's office these days becomes a place where the secretary turns away people he does not really care to see. In Wall street there are innumerable high powered executives who have a kitchen and dining-room equipment adjacent to their offices. One has a chef he pays $8,000 a year merely to serve tempting luncheons to himself and business confreres.

Month have passed with no word of a certain Broadway bootlegger. He was a fellow of great daring despite the fact his off nights were spent boasting of exploits in Broadway supper clubs. He knew the haunts of crooks and visited them with a taunting bravado. He decided to invade Chicago and his auto was found empty on the outskirts of that city not long afterward. The Broadway underworld whispers he was "put on a boat" or "clipped off"—which means he will never be seen again.

It is estimated at least a dozen figures disappear mysteriously in New York's underworld yearly—the victims of hired thugs.

Most of them paid the penalty for "talking out of turn," and there is a lesser penalty for all of us who do that, and don't ask me how I know.—Copyright, 1927.

Ferruccio Busoni—Composer.

BY COZETTE DOUGLASS.

While Ferruccio Benvenuto Busoni's name is invariably placed on the list of the famous piano-virtuosos, the glory of his triumphs as a pianist should not blind one to the beauties of his musical compositions—compositions which justly place him among the famous composers.

Ferruccio Busoni was born in Empoli, near Florence, on April 1, 1866. Considering the fact that his mother was a pianist and his father a fine clarinettist, and that both of them were Busoni's first teachers, is it to be wondered that the son of such a gifted couple attained such a prominent place in the musical world?

When he was but eight years of age, he made his debut as a pianist, after which he studied with W. A. Remy. In 1881 when he was but fifteen, he toured Italy and was elected a member of the Reale Academia Filarmonica of Bologna. In 1896 while in Leipzig he composed a fantastic opera and several other ranking compositions. In 1888 he was appointed professor of pianoforte playing in Helsingfors conservatory and in 1890 he took the Rubenstein prize for composition and pianoforte playing.

From then on, his was a busy life. After making several successful concert tours, he settled in Berlin as a teacher. During the years 1905 to 1907 he conducted a series of concerts of early music which was little heard or known. He made a most triumphant tour of the United States, where he was most enthusiastically received.

In company with Rossini and Verdi, the only other two Italians who had been so honored, Busoni was decorated with the chevalier's cross of the Legion d'Honneur.

It was not until after his reputation as a pianist was firmly established that Busoni's compositions began to attract attention. The list of his works is a long one, but the best known, perhaps is the "Lustspiel Overture."

Busoni made pianoforte transcriptions of many of Bach's organ works and one of his most valuable works is his edition of Bach's "Well tempered Clavichord."

He died in Berlin on July 27, 1924.

Today's Events.

Wednesday, December 21, 1927.

This is the last full day of autumn.

Three hundred years ago today was born Miguel de Molinos, a celebrated Spanish divine who founded the order of Quietists.

Charles P. Taft, Cincinnati newspaper publisher, who recently gave $1,000,000 as an endowment for the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra, today entered upon his eighty-fifth year.

Today is Forefathers' day, according to one reckoning, though the event, the anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth is sometimes observed on December 22.

Both houses of the United States congress adjourned today for a recess over the Christmas holidays. Noon of January 4 is the time fixed for the reassembling.

A party of distinguished statesmen and diplomats, comprising the European delegation to the forthcoming Pan-American congress, sailed from France today for Havana.

Major Herbert A. Dargue, commander of the Pan American Good-Will flight, and the seven other air corps pilots who completed with him a year ago the aerial visit to more than twenty South and Central American countries, were formally presented with their distinguished flying medals in Washington today.

GRANDMA NEVER LET HER HAIR GET GRAY

She Kept Her Locks Dark and Glossy, with Sage Tea and Sulphur

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturaly, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. For only 75 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxurious.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger.—Adv.

crossed the soft lawn. Carlotta's Shevlin's came to her ears like s thrown into a little pool of c.

"What did you do with what you got from Tubby Wells?"

"I've just been telling you." Shev- lin's answer was full of weariness and disgust.

"So it's all gone—everything?"

"Takes you some time to get an idea. Shall I say everything twice?"

Carlotta made a short, impatient gesture. "Oh, why don't you leave the stock-market alone? Tips—those won- derful tips you always have! Do you realize where this leaves me—how per- fectly ghastly things are? I can't even pay the servants tomorrow! Oh!"

Sally wished she had not come out, but it was too late now to return. They must have seen her, for all that they talked so frankly. Money—Shev- lin was always talking about money. But what was it Carlotta had said about Tubby Wells? Once again Sally had the feeling of being shut out from an important secret.

Shevlin glanced up. "Don't make me tired," he drawled. His eyes fell upon Sally.

"But what am I going to do—it's ghastly! I haven't got a penny to meet things—and the bills are coming in right and left. How much longer do you think I can stand—?"

"Not much. Not much longer than I can stand hearing you complain."

"Oh, you—you—"

"Don't be a fool—any more than you can help." Why did Mrs. Brooke let him draw! his deliberate insults? She had forgotten everything, scarcely seemed to realize Sally was there. Only Shevlin's eyes peered at her from the shadows. He laughed shortly.

"The little duchess is present. I shouldn't advise you, Carlotta, to use coarse language."

Mrs. Brooke half turned towards Sally. She was breathing unevenly. Sally could see the fingers of one hand moving nervously. She pitied her. "Poor thing—poor thing! And how I hate him!"

It was like Shevlin to be frank when it was least expected. He said dryly to Sally:

"You have arrived at a great domes- tic crisis. We happen to be broke, wiped out. Now just how soon do you think you can marry a million- aire? It would be very helpful, and accommodating if you'd pick out one tonight."

Under his satiric voice, there was something like a thread of seriousness, something menacing even.

"I'm afraid I don't know any well enough," she said evasively, coolly.

"You don't? . . . What about Adrian Martin?"

"I did what you asked me to. I met him."

"Yes, I know, I know. And visited him the same night—alone in his house."

A quick catch of breath in her throat . . . how did Shevlin know that, how had he found that out? She had said nothing to Carlotta, nothing to anyone.

He was grinning at her, in his hard way, enjoying her surprise and fear.

"I—I—well, you must know that I only—"

Shevlin yawned. "Why apologize? It was what I wanted you to do. But—to get down to cases—why not marry Martin? Can you?"

"I can't." I wouldn't if I could, but I can't."

"Don't be too sure. A man who has had three wives is probably not in- curable. I'd like you to try."

"I—but it's impossible."

Carlotta's hand strayed over, and her fingers clasped Sally's as if for comfort, as if saying, "It's your turn now. Never mind!"

"Well?" Shevlin's inquiry came out of the darkness beneath the trees, like a rasp of command. He was leaning forward across the iron table, study- ing her, in the dimness, not moving.

"I can't."

"Why can't you?"

"I don't like him."

"What has that got to do with it? You like his money, don't you?"

"Dan, leave her alone."

He threw Mrs. Brooke a single glance. Not a word spoken, but it silenced her.

A pause of further silence, while Shevlin scratched a match. "Well, I'm willing to be reasonable," he said at last. "What's the matter with Adrian Martin? Come on, let's get to the bottom of this. Why don't you like him?"

"I—I just don't."

"Suppose I told you I didn't care whether you did or not?"

"Oh!" Sally felt her self-control de- serting her. What right had he to badger her like this? Badgering wom- en, taking advantage of people who couldn't fight back. She struggled help- lessly to tell him what she thought, to tell him how she detested him. But couldn't. She could do nothing.

"Well, what about it?"

She couldn't stand it any longer. "I tell you, I won't," she cried, her voice breaking now. "You're—you ask too much. I did what you said. And—and I'm not going to see him again. He's—why you don't know what I know about him."

"Oh? What do you know that I don't." He was looking at her with sharp interest now.

Confused, unhappy, anxious to es- cape, Sally poured out what Jerry had told her about Adrian Martin.

"He—he even killed a man once. In South America, it was. I know it. I—he makes me afraid."

"What killed a man . . . killed? Tell me more. Where was this South Amer- ica? When? When did it happen? Come on now!"

"Dan, don't!" Carlotta had stirred in her chair with a little frightened movement.

"When did it happen?" he repeated. "Last year, I think. I don't know."

He flung question after question at her, sharp quick questions that went to the root of the story, and pressed on every side, she told the little she knew, only leaving out Jerry's name.

Then Shevlin leaned back, smiling broadly. He snapped his fingers with sudden cheerfulness.

"On the whole," he drawled, "you may be right. I don't suppose I should ask you to try to marry a man who's done a thing like that. It wouldn't be . . . fair."

His eyes went to Carlotta. She sat like a woman turned to stone, with something anguished in her face and bearing.

Sally stared. Her puzzled mind tried to understand. She felt that she was only a step away from understanding everything.

A Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

Mr. Jackson Invites Madge

LILLIAN had spoken truly when she had said that young Mr. Jackson in his calls on Mary was "singing as continuous a performance as Noel Vertuzen used to do." Even some my- wondering dinner to Lillian and Mar- ion at which Phillip and Noel Vertuzen, Miss Lincoln and Mr. Jackson had been guests, the handsome stranger whom I still dubbed in my thoughts "the mysterious youth with the wolf hound," had been almost a daily caller at the farmhouse.

With charming courtesy which had a distinctly foreign flavor, he managed to convey the impression that his de- sire to see all the members of the family was equally great. And the gifts of bonbons, magazines and fruit which he invariably brought with him were impartially distributed. Yet there was a subtle something in his manner toward Mary which set her apart, and I gave him credit for the cleverness with which he managed gradually to gain the whole time and attention of the young girl for himself while failing in no detail of chivalrous courtesy to the rest of us.

His conquest of Mother Graham was his greatest triumph. Evidently she had quite forgotten that she had char- acterized him as "one of the gang of crooks", for she beamed upon him as he whenever he appeared, and she was al- ways ready to go with him and Mary on the drives to which he scrupulously invited some older member of our group.

His strict inclusion of a chaperone upon every occasion when he took Mary driving puzzled me, for he had brought Miss Lincoln to our dinner with no other attendant but himself. Lillian explained it with her usual levity.

"He's either doing it to protect himself, so he won't lose his head and propose, or else he's lulling you to sleep so that after awhile when he be- gins to drop the chaperones gradually and adroitly, you won't notice."

But it was not to call on Mary that young Jackson was sending his motor car up the drive at the moment that Lillian had commented upon his ar- rival. He brought the car to an abrupt stop, was out of the car at the same instant, and ran up the veranda steps as if some were pursuing him.

"Mrs. Graham," he said almost breathlessly, "will you come for a lit- tle drive with me? Something has arisen about which I must ask your advice."

I concealed my astonishment with a smiling acquiescence and with an apologetic word to Lillian, he hurried me away. As the car swept away from the house I caught a glimpse from an upper window of Mary's lovely face wearing the most ludicrous look of as- tonishment. The next instant she had gone from the window and I knew she had taken no chance of young Mr. Jackson seeing her and noting her sur- prised disappointment, for that emotion was also mirrored on her face.

"This is unpardonable of me, I know," the young man said as he sent the car down the road at a speed which showed his excitement, "but I really don't know to whom else I can appeal."

"If you keep up this pace," I said laughing, "you'll have a chance to ap- peal to a judge in a traffic court if we don't land in a hospital or a morgue."

"I do beg your pardon," he said, im- stantly lessening the speed of the car. "But I really am so upset. I don't know what to do. Tell me, is it true that Mr. Vertuzen is going to put Miss Lincoln upon the stage after she has studied with him, and that she is to begin a preliminary course in the his- tory of the drama with you?"

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

Me and Jubilee laid a long time after I woke up this morning thinking about squirrels and girls and Christmas. I thought most about squirrels and girls, and I tried to think up a way that I could trap me one. One squirrel. My grandfather said: "A fella don't have to trap a girl. Quite the opposite." I don't know what he meant by that, and maybe he don't. He laughed like it was funny. He said in olden times when a fella lived in a cave and wanted a girl for a wife he went out with a good hefty club and beaned one and brung her home to his cave and they lived hap- pily forever after. I asted him what they done if it was a little skinny man and a big hefty woman like Goop's father and mother, and he said that in that case the woman carried the man home. He said that was how woman got the name of being man's helpmeet. She helped him meet her and then she carried him home. I asted him if there was any bachelors in them days, and he said he supposed so, because there must of been some awful good run- ners in them days.

I managed to roll a fried egg up in a pancake and stuff it in my pants pocket for Jubilee whilst my grand- father and my aut was fussing at each other. She said he had a flat wheel and couldn't run but she didn't see anyone marrying him. He said there was lots that was crazy to to marry him. My aut just said, "They would be." Then my grandfather said he would marry one of them if he was sure they didn't want to marry him for his money; and my aut asted him what else they would marry him for? My grandfather couldn't think of anything to say ex- cept that nobody had beaned her yet. And I could see she thought she had the best of it.

Whilst we were eating breakfast yet the bunch began to hollee "Squirrel! Squirrel!" And I started to hop up and run, but my father pushed me back in my chair and told me to finish my breakfast. So I did. I'll show him he can't get me all excited that way for nothing. They were all up in the tree when I went out and they made good marks for snowballs, and when I be- gan pegging at them they weren't long getting down. I told them the squirrel was in my tree and to let it alone because it was mine.

We rolled a snowball most of the way to school, and when we were put- ting it up on the school shed to sur- prize someone with I was bossing the job, and Peanuts and Nibs let go of it and I think I swallowed some of it. I had Nibs' head in a drift when the teacher pulled me off, but he came up laughing so she didn't do anything.

I don't think I would have to hit Feeble with a club if I wanted to marry her, but I might Youniss.

SENATOR JONES OF NEW MEXICO DIES

Veteran Had Been in Senate Since 1916; Also in Interior Department

Washington, Dec. 21—Senator A. Jones, Democrat, of New Mexico, died at his home here today of pneumonia following a long illness. He was unable to attend the session of the senate since the recess.

The death of Senator Jones will leave the republicans one vote short of the majority in the senate. Inasmuch as the governor of New Mexico is a Republican it is expected that a Republican will be appointed as his successor to serve until the next election.

The present line-up of the senate with Senator-elect Bratton of New Mexico absent, has been 46 Republicans, 47 Democrats, and one Farmer-Labor. With a Republican successor to Jones, the Republicans will have a bare majority of one vote over the Democrats even with Smith and Vare on the odd side.

Senator Jones was 65 years old and had been in the Senate since 1916. Prior to that he was for some years assistant secretary of the interior. He was born in Tennessee in 1862.

POLICE FRUSTRATE AUTO THEFT ATTEMPT

Two Cars Taken and One Recovered in City Last Night

Police at 10:30 o'clock last night were reported that two cars were attempted to steal in addition from the intersection of Bellefontaine and Orchard st near the intersection of Bellefontaine.

A number of cars were parked along the street and the actions of three young men who were prowling around the machines aroused the suspicions of people living in the vicinity who called the police. One of the three who had evidently been posted as a lookout, saw the police car approaching the officers and the three took to their heels and were lost in the dark.

Two cars were taken and one recovered, during the night, according to reports made to the police. M. Y. Gates, 451 Bellefontaine st, reported to the police shortly after 1 o'clock that the Ford sedan had been stolen from in front of his home a few minutes before. The car which had not been found by the police yet today, carried Ohio license 211-063 and motor number 295410.

A Chevrolet touring car belonging to Earl Porter, 570 Bartram-av and which was reported stolen by the owner early after 8 o'clock, was found several hours later. The car was taken from in front of the Auto Parts & Body Co.

Hardware Company Holds Annual Banquet at Elks' Home

Kenton, Dec. 21—Distribution, under a profit-sharing plan, of money averaging more than $100 for each employe, and announcement of plans whereby free medical service is to be accorded workers or their families, were the outstanding features of the annual banquet given by The Kenton Hardware Co. to its employes Tuesday night in Elks' home.

The new medical service, embodying practically all of the benefits of the hospital units maintained by the large corporations, will go into effect January 1, according to L. S. Bixler, president of the hardware company, the largest concern in the world engaged exclusively in the manufacture of iron toys.

"This new arrangement is a voluntary contribution by the company for the welfare and health of all employes," Mr. Bixler said. A factory physician will be decided upon before the close of the year.

Present Skit

Unprecedented success marked the annual affair participated in by more than 180 employes, company officials and invited guests. The program included the service of a three course dinner, a minstrel skit by the employes, dancing and specialties.

Heads of the factory departments composed the committee on arrangements. AGED RECLUSE DIES IN OLD FARM HOUSE

Cerebral Hemorrhage, Exposure Cause of Death, Coroner Says

Kenton, Dec. 21—Bill Conklin, 85, said to be a recluse, was found dead in an abandoned farm house on the William Holland farm, east of Kenton, on the Marion County line.

Dr. R. G. Schutte, Hardin County coroner, said death was due to exposure and cerebral hemorrhage.

Conklin was last seen by Mr. Holland a day previous to his death. His body was found when Mr. Holland went to the house, where the recluse had been in the habit of bunking at times, to give him some rabbits.

According to the farmer, Conklin has been living off and on in the county for the past 20 years. His home was in Huntsville and he has a sister living in Ridgeway and one near Kenton, it was learned.

When found, Conklin had been dead apparently many hours. Exposure is believed to have contributed to death, since no firewood or evidences of a recent fire were found.

MRS. WILLIAM SNYDER FOUND DEAD AT HOME

Aged Forest Woman Suffers Stroke, Dies Before Aid Is Summoned

Kenton, Dec. 21—Tragedy and sorrow replaced happiness upon the birthday anniversary of Mrs. William W. Snyder, 65, Forest, yesterday.

Barring a gift of remembrance of the occasion, Mrs. Blanche Fishburn, a daughter, called at the Snyder home above the Hempy Hardware store in that town, only to find her mother lying dead on the floor.

The elderly woman, one of Forest's most esteemed residents, is believed to have suffered a stroke as she was preparing to retire and before she was able to summon aid, fell helpless.

When Mrs. Fishburn first called at the apartment she was unable to gain admittance and receiving no replies to calls to her mother, she secured keys with which to open the door. It was then that she first discovered the tragedy.

Mrs. Snyder, whose husband's death occurred some years ago, had lived in Forest for many years. Beside the daughter, she leaves a sister, Mrs. Alta Denham.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock in charge of Rev. J. S. Freeman, pastor of the Forest Presbyterian church. Interment was in the Hueston cemetery.

COMPLETE PROBE OF KENTON MAN'S DEATH

Injuries Suffered in Fall Responsible for Demise, Officials Find

Kenton, Dec. 21—Investigation completed this morning into the death of John Tipple, 36, which occurred Sunday in a local hospital, disclosed the fact that injuries sustained several days ago in a fall from a building on a farm north of Kenton, resulted in complications causing death, it was stated today.

The investigation was conducted by Loucks C. Brown, Hardin County prosecutor, and Dr. R. G. Schutte, coroner, following rumored reports that the man had been attacked.

"The investigation indicated that the man had not been attacked but had been injured in a fall at the farm where he had been working several days ago, and that complications developed from the injuries," Prosecutor Brown said.

Mr. Tipple was taken to the hospital Sunday where an operation was performed in the hope of saving his life. In their probe, officials examined the man's body but found no marks that would indicate violence, it was said. They also questioned several persons.

They Will Have To Pay and Pay for Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker

These Stars Are So Wise, It Seems, In Fundamentals of Contracts and Bonuses

Walsh Doesn't Expect Any Clouds of Possibility To Clear Horizon Until Around All-Important Date of Feb. 1

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, Dec. 21—The alleged reason for baseball's concerted lack of interest in a man, who will hit .350 until such time as they wheel him away from there in a strictly horizontal posture, was forthcoming today in the form of a so called low down on Ty Cobb's financial arrangement last year with the Philadelphia Athletics. According to those advices, Cobb stood to win $80,000—not a head of lettuce, just a bank roll—during 1927, meaning that nobody can do business with Cobb today at least until the mortgage on the Ford sedan is paid off.

As for Tris Speaker, it is understood that the Washington Club would like to get something for his release, which would account for the fact that all activity concerning this gentleman has come to parade rest. They might want Speaker but they don't want the $35,000 kick in the bill fold that went with him last year.

Hard To Do

If this sum has the boys stopped now, Cobb's 1927 arrangement must go for a clean knockout, even with a Chicago count. As the proposition was outlined today, Cobb permitted himself to be coerced into signing a contract for $50,000. He, however, is said to have had sufficient presence of mind to demand and get a $10,000 bonus for signing and another of $5,000 for playing exhibition games in the south.

This was only bee money, it seems; so they added a casket, agreeing to pay Tyrus another $15,000 in case the Athletics got into the world series. It wasn't Cobb's fault that they didn't but the point is that the total obligation, if really true, was out of all reason to any man's worth.

Only a few years ago, half of it represented a total outlay for an entire ball club. Therefore, half of it looks apparently will not be tossed to one ball player. I might go even further and say that a quarter of it possibly would be over estimating the situation in this respect.

Making Haste Slowly

Cobb, having more money than he can throw away with a pitchfork in a week, naturally is doing nothing very rapidly and with great care. Speaker, not a public charge in his own right, is doing the same thing and keeping right at it.

At the recent baseball meetings, it was said that neither Philadelphia nor Washington actually had parted with the stars, although those in touch with the Philadelphia situation insisted that Cobb no longer was connected with the outfit. However, in case the formality of presenting these ten-year men with unconditional releases has been neglected, a show down is not far in the offing.

By Feb. 1, both Cobb and Speaker must be presented with contracts or automatically they will become free agents, according to baseball law. Something, therefore, probably will develop on or about that date.

St. Louis May Get Them

A report in circulation here today was to the effect that both might go to St. Louis but not with the same club. This report alleged that the Cardinals had started something in Speaker's connection recently. Meanwhile, it was thought that Cobb's friendship for Dan Howley, manager of the Browns, might result in something dearer and finer and bigger and better, or words to that general effect. Howley wanted Cobb last year. He apparently can have him now, provided he is willing to pay for the privilege.

These men with other well known stars will make up the All-East lineup.

Bliss Prepares for Tough Game

Anticipating tough going in the game with the Isaly Dairies tonight the Bliss College team of Columbus has strengthened its lineup. Nagel, a guard, and Red Roush, forward, have been added to the lineup. Roush is a former All-Columbus center and has appeared here on previous occasions.

The game tonight will be the only chance fans will have this week to witness a court clash. The high school and the Eagles, probably, will be idle.

Prelim Arranged

In the preliminary, the Trinity Baptist Church team will meet the Butler Midgets. This game will start at 7:30 o'clock tonight and the main game will start at 8:15 o'clock. The games will be played on the Star auditorium court.

A victory tonight will give the Dairies a .500 standing for games played on the home floor. In the first two games of the season the Kenton Reds and Ohio Wesleyan took the measure of the Dairies. Last week the locals checked up their first win of the season in the game with Kenyon College. A victory tonight will put them on a more comfortable footing in the percentage column.

BOXING COMMISSION SUSPENDS JOE GLICK

Action Comes as Result of Foul Blow in Tod Morgan Fight

New York, Dec. 21—Joe Glick has been suspended indefinitely by the New York boxing commission for fouling Tod Morgan, junior lightweight champion, last Friday night at Madison Square Garden and still another echo of that famous controversy will be heard Friday when Harold Barnes, one of the ringside judges, will be quizzed by the commissioners.

In his round-by-round score of the fight, Barnes gave Morgan two rounds in which the champion was knocked down by Glick. His justification was that the champion was floored by foul punches, although the referee did not recognize any of the punches that felled Morgan as illegal until the fourteenth round when he acted promptly and disqualified Glick.

JAKE SCHAEFER LEADING COCHRAN

New Billiard Champ Likely To Be Crowned Tonight

New York, Dec. 21—A new 18.2 balk line billiard champion of the world probably will be crowned tonight. Jack Schaefer, who lost the championship in 1925, was leading Welker Cochran, the present champion by a score of 900 to 590 this morning in their 1500 point match.

Schaefer ran out his 300 points to complete last night's block in eight turns at the table for an average of 37 4-8, which made his grand average 30 3-25.

While Jake was accomplishing this Cochran was able to collect only 171 buttons for a block average of 24 6-7 and a grand average of 26 18-22.

Another 300 point block will be played this afternoon before the closing session tonight.

In the matter of high runs Schaefer starred with a cluster of 137 and Cochran's best was 99. Schaefer has won all three of the blocks played so far, the first by 300 to 211 and the second by 300 to 205. He also scored the best run of the match so far, 157 yesterday afternoon.

SEVERAL CHICAGO FIGHT MANAGERS GET OFFICIAL "AIR"

Ray Miller, Lightweight, Becomes Overnight Philanthropist on Executive Advice

Chicago, Dec. 21—The Christmas Charity Fund was swelled to $500 today and a whole flock of Chicago boxing managers were on the temporarily retired list following a busy day at the office of the Illinois Boxing Commission.

Ray Miller, local junior lightweight, "presented" $500 of his Monday night purse to the Charity Fund on the advice of the commissioners. Therefore Miller avoided suspension and fine for his "stalling" tactics against Mike Dundee in the feature bout of the Christmas fund show.

Jack Carter, manager of Dundee, was suspended indefinitely and his license revoked for creating a disturbance at the ringside, seeking, it was said, to influence the appointment of judges for the fight.

Joe Glaser, manager of Eddie Shea, was suspended indefinitely for making unkind remarks about judges at the recent Shea Ruth fight at White City.

Duke Barry, manager of Rolvart Sugrue, the Cuban light heavyweight sensation, was given the same punishment for criticism of the commission.

Joey Sanger, Milwaukee featherweight, was fined for failure to go through with his scheduled match with Benny "Kid" Carter at the Christmas fund show.

Believe George Remus Will Be Found Sane and Freed

RY ACQUITS NCINNATIAN

er Bootlegger King Will xt Go Before Probate Judge

, Dec. 21—George Remus, of the murder of his wife, on the sole grounds of in- will dedicate the rest of his , "to stifle the insult known prohibition law."

by circumventing this law a few years ago became as the nation's most audacious ular bootlegger, building up siness of $100,000,000. He profit of some $7,000,000—and ally all of it. He knows the business as probably no other man does and can speak with some authority.

Besides touring the country as a lecturer he plans to write a book, "The Life of George Remus."

Probably Held Sane

Remus probably would have gone scot free for the slaying of his wife, whom he shot last Oct. 6 in Eden Park, had not Judge Chester R. Shook eliminated from his instructions to the jury the "straight not guilty" form of verdict. The jury wanted to give Remus a Christmas present in the form of his freedom but they could not, under the law. So they did the next best thing—returned the verdict of "not guilty on the sole ground of insanity."

This means that Remus will have to go before Judge William R. Leuders in probate court and prove that he is sane. If he is found to be insane, he will be sent to the Lima (Ohio) Hospital for the criminal insane. The general belief is that Remus will be held sane, inasmuch as the three alienists appointed by Judge Shook to observe him in court found him to be sane.

Bail To Be Sought

Bail for Remus was to be sought today. He remained in his cell in the county jail last night, happier than in years. All evening he received congratulations from friends. He sat up late talking with his daughter, Romola. She brought him a small Christmas tree, and they had a jolly dinner after the verdict.

The verdict which was reached on the first ballot was certified to Probate Judge Leuders shortly after it was rendered. This judge may hold Remus' sanity hearing today. The docket in his court, however, calls for the hearing of a condemnation case but Charles H. Elston, Remus' lawyer, believes he can prevail upon the attorneys in that case to permit Remus' hearing to have the right of way so that the former "king of the bootleggers" may be a free man by Christmas.

Marion Fire Department Extinguish Small Blaze in Anderson Home

A defective stove pipe is thought by Fire Chief McFarland to have been responsible for a small blaze at the home of Mrs. Henry Anderson, living near the intersection of the Upper Sandusky and Bucyrus pikes, early last night.

The fire was discovered by members of the family about 6:30 o'clock when the lath in the ceiling around the chimney hole in the kitchen was found to be ablaze. The firemen from the No. 3 station responded to the call and extinguished the fire with chemicals with a few dollars loss.

Negotiations To Settle Complaints Against Realty Company Still Under Way

Customers of Cleveland Firm Reported To Include 25 Marion County Residents; Expect To Reach Settlement in Next Few Weeks

Negotiations for settlement of complaints filed against the Murray Sales Co., Cleveland real estate firm whose customers are reported to include approximately 25 Marion County residents, are still under way with prospects of reaching a definite conclusion within the next few weeks.

This was made known today by J. W. Jacoby, local attorney and realtor, following his return last night from Cleveland, where he had charge of a hearing of the Murray case before the state board of real estate examiners. Mr. Jacoby is chairman of the board.

Complaints filed by salesmen of the company, in which they asserted that they had not received compensation for services in accordance with their contract, were dismissed by the board. Complaints filed on behalf of lot purchasers, however, are still pending. An effort is now being made to place the property marketed by the Murray company in escrow in order that interests of the purchasers may be protected. The company sold approximately 200 lots in the last year.

Plan of Board

The program outlined by the board is intended to restore confidence to "purchasers who feel they have been victimized," it was announced following adjournment of the session at Cleveland yesterday.

The board will meet again in Cleveland on a date to be set about the middle of January and consideration of the Murray case will be resumed at that time, Mr. Jacoby said today.

Various complaints against other Cleveland real estate dealers came before the board at its two-day session and a number of licenses were revoked.

The full effect of the real estate license law is becoming evident as the state board continues its consideration of numerous complaints filed against dealers in different localities.

Rulings Are Made

The public is to be given every measure of protection provided under the law, Mr. Jacoby declared today.

Several rulings made by the board are of the highest importance to the buying public. One is that "high pressure" selling, which has caused more trouble in the subdivision end of the business than perhaps any other element, is taboo. Real estate must be sold, in other words, without the methods of the "barker" and without misrepresentation.

Selling to a person more real estate than his income warrants or inducing him to mortgage a property under promise of its sale in order to profit the down payment on another property also were ruled out by the board.

"Similar hearings have been held in several cities, or will be held", Mr. Jacoby states. "When they are over it seems likely that we shall have the real estate business in Ohio thoroughly purged of its few undesirables."

Progress of Forward Movement In Stock Prices Is Blocked

COPPER SHARES IN STRONG BID

Money Market Stiffens, Loans Are Called and Rate Takes Jump

Markets at a Glance

Railroad stocks, firm; industrial stocks, strong; domestic bonds, firm; foreign bonds, firm; call money, 4 per cent; grain, steady; copper, steady; oil, firm; cotton, irregular; rubber, steady; sugar steady; pig iron, firm; foreign exchange, steady.

New York, Dec. 21 Stiffening of the money market, moderate calling of loans by the banks, an increase in the call loan rate to 4½ per cent, profit-taking and speculative selling to the Wall Street district blocked the progress of the forward movement in stock prices today, and the market developed an irregular tone.

Stocks of the copper companies made a bid for bullish recognition in the afternoon, and prices of Calumet & Arizona, Greene Cananea, American Smelting, Anaconda and other well-known copper shares scored new gains of 1 to 6 points. But these were the first to feel the effects of the mid-day reaction, and extreme declines of 12 points or less were recorded in various sections of the list.

The decline of 114,000 in the week's total of freight car loadings in domestic trade was a severe jolt to the bulls in the stock market, though it is recognized that there has been a heavy falling off in shipments of coal, lumber and other products. The Iron Age reported an increase in December specifications for steel, but a decline in actual shipments leaving a moderate increase in unfilled tonnage as the industry finished the old year. Crude oil production figures showed a drop of 30,500 barrels a day, and a better feeling in oil circles.

Underlying strength in the stock market was plainly exhibited in the slowing down of speculative trading at the lower price ranges. Bears failed to force out any large amount of weakly-margined stocks, while in many cases the selling of large blocks was reported when price trends went upward.

Cotton

New York, Dec. 21—The local cotton market opened slightly irregular today. Initial quotations ranged from 7 points lower to one net point higher. December sold at 19.19, up 01; January 19.10, down 06; March 19.28 down 03; May 19.11, down 01 and July 19.33, down 07.

Rubber.

New York, Dec. 21—Trading in the outside market for crude rubber futures was quiet with prices steady.

Sellers asked 39⅝ cents for spot and Dec. ribbed smoked sheets; 39¾ cents for Jan.; 39⅞ cents for Jan-March; 40⅜ cents for April-June.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

A gradual increase in buying in preparation for the holiday season was reported today by markets. The average lowering has been confined principally to fruits and nuts. Mixed nuts were being offered as a special by some dealers at 25 cents a pound, five cents below the regular price. Christmas trees are plentiful and were being offered today from 25 cents for the table size to $2.00 for the larger sizes. Holly continues scarce, a few wreaths and a small quantity of the loose being carried by dealers, selling at 15 cents for the latter and 35 cents each for the former. English walnuts were selling today at from 25 to 30 cents. Brazil nuts from 25 to 40 cents, almonds from 30 to 50 cents and pecans from 45 to 75 cents. Cauliflower was more plentiful today and was selling at 25 and 35 cents. Egg plant was selling slow at 20 to 30 cents.

Oranges continue to supply the demand at a wide range of prices. Small Florida varieties can be bought as low as 11 for 25 cents while Navels were being quoted at from 25 to 50 cents. Bananas are plentiful and are holding at 10 cents a pound. No prospect for an immediate drop in cranberries was reported by dealers today, the price holding at 25 cents and dealers reporting buying heavy. Dealers also report an increase in the demand for grapes. Tokay and Malagas are both holding at from 12½ to 15 cents a pound.

Retail meat prices were steady with buying above normal, dealers report today.

TODAY'S REVIEW

Chicago, Dec. 21—Opening wheat prices were sharply lower with corn yesterday, but the market later showed a firm undertone and good buying brought prices up near the previous close. The trade interpreted the government report as bearish and offerings were plentiful early. Houses with Northwest connections were the best buyers, later. Trade was fairly active.

The opening break in corn prices, due to the increase of 33,000,000 bu in the government estimate, assumed about the proportions anticipated by the trade. The low of 90½c in the May was touched shortly after the start, but the break of nearly 3c uncovered substantial resting orders in the hands of commission houses, and with additional buying by shorts the market quickly firmed. The remainder of the session prices held above 91½c for the May and corresponding better in the other futures. The high was reached at 92c in the distant future but liquidation was too heavy at this point for the buying power, and prices eased.

Bradstreet's available increased 1,117,000 bu for the week.

There was little disposition toward the selling side in the oats pit, except at the start, when corn and wheat slumped. Trade was mixed and light. But little attention was paid to the decrease of 10,000,0000 in the government's final estimate. Cash demand continued good, with receipts light.

Rye, while affected slightly by wheat, showed a strong undertone throughout the day.

VELMA WEST CASE WILL GO TO JURY ON JAN.

Painesville, Dec. 21—The case of Velma West, 21, alleged lover of her husband, Edward West 24, will be the first case presented to the Lake County Grand Jury when it convenes Jan. 9, according to Prosecutor Seth Parker, who yesterday issued summons to four women and eight men to serve on the grand jury.

West was beaten to death at Perry, Ohio, on June 15 days ago. Two state detectives said they were closely guarded and permitted a different route so that no suspicious could see closely and legally make that statement, says Clerk for the common pleas court.

FEW 1928 TAGS ON AUTOS HERE

First Day on Which New Plates Can Be Used Is Advanced

Comparatively few Marion county motorists took advantage of the ruling made by the secretary of state, issue today as the first day on which cars could be driven with the 1928 license tags. A few of the blue and white tags were visible, but only a few.

The date for opening the sale of the tags and the day on which they could be used was moved up by the secretary of state this year, in order to give motorists every opportunity to secure their tags before the first of the year. It having been emphatically announced by the secretary of the state, that their would be no extension of time this year.

The sale of 1928 which have been comparatively light since the opening day on Dec. 1, has taken an encouraging spurt, it was announced today by Mrs. D. V. Gallagher, deputy commissioner. More than 350 tags were sold yesterday, Mrs. Gallagher said. This included sales at both the office of the Auto Club at the Hotel Harding and the temporary office in the room adjacent to the Hotel Marion.

Sell 2,800 to Date

Mrs. Gallagher also announced that Crom now on until the last of the year, tags for non-members will be sold at the Auto Club offices as well as from the temporary offices. Up until the present time, only members of the club could secure their tags at the club office.

There had been approximately 2,800 tags sold up until last night, Mrs. Gallagher said today, leaving 5,000 yet to be sold. In order that every automobile in the county will secure its 1928 tags on time to have them on the machine before Jan. 1, it will be necessary to sell 500 each day.

Mrs. Gallagher also said that it will be absolutely impossible for a car owner to secure tags unless he furnishes, with his application, his bill of sale, and that for any truck owner to secure tags, he must, in addition to submitting his bill of sale, submit an official weight slip, signed by the weighmaster and the weight of the truck inscribed in the proper places on the edge of the card.

The first building permit to be issued from the office of the city clerk in 10 days was taken out by George C. Burry, Adams-st, yesterday afternoon, who will build a shed and garage to cost approximately $200.

City Clerk Keller is making a campaign seeking to have all those who have built, or who are building and have failed to take out a permit, take out the permit before the first of the year. Both state and national reports are made at that time, Clerk Keller says, and in order that the building activities of the city can appear correctly in these reports, it is asked that permits be taken out.

Old Man's Account of the Meeting, Mrs. Sharrock, Mildred Tomlin, Maxine Kline and Barbara Ruth Wait assisted Caledonia, Dec. 21—Mrs. Ruth Clark and Mrs. Lavern Sharrock were hostess to the Lend-a-hand circle, King's Daughters, annual Christmas meeting held in the basement of the M. E. Church, Monday night. The room was attractively arranged with floor lamps, and Christmas decorations.

Mrs. Emma Douce presided at the meeting and for devotionals read the Birth of Christ as given in the book of Matthew, and offered prayer. Two Christmas carols, "O Little Town of Bethelehem" and "There's a Song in the Air" were sung by the assembly. During the business session, it was decided to remember the aged and shut ins with a Christmas treat. Mrs. Lillian Koch was appointed chairman of a committee to look after same. Two members, Mrs. Opal Timson and Mrs. H. E. Stevens were received into the circle. Plans were made to have a penny supper, the second Wednesday night in January, in the church basement. Mrs. Mrs. W. B. Pasters of Marion, county president, was present and conducted installation of officers for the new year.

Those installed were Mrs. Stevens, leader; Mrs. Dessie Hipsher, vice leader; Mrs. Irene Williams, treasurer, and Mrs. Zoa Hill, secretary.
